7. SEATING FOR THE KAMA TRANSMISSIONS

Due to the large number of Rinpoches, Tulkus, Khenpos, Geshes, Khenmos, monks, nuns, and Ngagpas and Ngagmas, additional seating for monastics who do not fit in the shrine room and most non-monastics will be arranged in a large shrine tent connected to the main shrine.

This large shrine tent area will have large LED screens and sound system provided for the duration of the transmissions. This large shrine tent will also include a chair seating section for those who are unable to sit on cushions for many hours.

8. MEAL SERVICE AND DESIGNATED DINING AREAS

Meals are being offered daily for everyone. Meals will be served in separate locations based on your color-coded Kama ID Badges. Participants must go to your designated dining area for your meals. We request all participants to remain in the area designated for your group.

This will help meal servers to serve meals quickly and efficiently, assuring everyone is able to be served on time. All meals offered daily will be vegetarian. The monastery will not be able to accept any special meal requests.

9. WEATHER

During the winter season in Dehradun, the nights and early mornings can be quite cold. The typical temperatures in December and January: highs of 19-21 °C during day, lows of 3-7 °C at night.

Due to these temperature fluctuations, be prepared for crisp mornings and evenings. The sun will warm things up during the day, but once the sun sets, it cools quickly.

Because the cold at night can be sharp, especially in unheated or minimally heated accommodation, bringing your own sleeping bag will help ensure you are warm and comfortable. It may be chilly even during the day, especially in shaded or windy places, so it is good to have layers for clothing.

10. WHAT TO BRING

For those with monastery arranged accommodations, a complete set of bedding (pillow, sheet set and comforter) is provided. However, we do recommend you also plan to bring the following items:

- a sleeping bag
- your own towels
- a flask or thermos

To support our efforts in reducing waste and caring for the environment, we kindly encourage everyone to bring their own cups for tea, which will be served during the transmissions. This will help us minimize the use of disposable cups.

In the same spirit, we are also moving towards reducing paper usage. Wherever possible, please make use of the QR codes provided for accessing information and prayer books digitally. Your support in these efforts is deeply appreciated.
